

Finding a Place for Everything

KEY FOR PRACTICE EXERCISE: Although there are no "right" or "wrong" answers to this exercise, these examples are typical. The amount of space needed for each item/center will vary depending upon family size. Determining where centers are placed is easier if you keep in mind where they'll be used and who'll be using them. For example, if the Breakfast Center is to be used by small children, it should be placed in a lower cupboard. Or, if family members are tall, you can make better use of high cupboards such as those above the stove.
