

Policy Clarification: Purchasing from Unauthorized Entities is Prohibited

April 2023

Tupperware U.S., Inc. and Premiere Products Brands of Canada, Ltd., d/b/a Tupperware Canada (collectively, "Tupperware USCA") hereby issue the following updates and clarifications to policy. This policy clarification forms a part of each Tupperware independent sales representative's Consultant Agreement and, to the extent any portion hereof conflicts with the Consultant Agreement, the terms of this policy shall apply.

1. As a Tupperware independent sales representative, you are authorized to use Tupperware trademarks and party methods and to receive certain benefits, such as commissions and participation in Tupperware programs, that other individuals do not receive. One condition of receiving these benefits is that you agree to be bound by the Consultant Agreement, which requires that when you purchase Tupperware® branded products, you purchase from Tupperware USCA at the established prices for such products and via the Tupperware USCA authorized purchasing channels.
2. Purchases of Tupperware-branded products for resale from parties other than Tupperware USCA, including direct purchases from foreign distributors of Tupperware products, is prohibited.
3. You acknowledge that failure to use authorized channels for product purchases circumvents many of the protections put in place by Tupperware USCA to ensure the compliance of products for the US and Canada markets. For example:
 - a. Purchases from unauthorized sources have not been vetted or approved by Tupperware USCA for sale in the US and Canada.
 - b. Licensed artwork and other features may not be authorized to be sold to the same extent in the US and Canada markets as they are in other markets.
 - c. Importation of products from other countries for wholesale resale purposes may incur special import and customs taxes, tariffs and/or duties.
 - d. Labels and packaging may be subject to regulations in US and Canada that do not apply to sales in other countries.
 - e. Warranty services for products not sold through Tupperware USCA will not be supported by Tupperware USCA.
 - f. The above risks may cause monetary and other damages to you, the customer and Tupperware USCA, and you will be responsible for any such damages in the event you violate this policy.
